These are the confessions of a caregiver. When applying for the job no one would ever apply for, there are a series of requirements you'll need: You are the nurse, handing medications at home and reminding a chemo-brained man to take the right pills at the right time. You are the chauffeur, driving to and from chemotherapies.

Confessions of a Caregiver. April 21, 2016. Tim Moran. I have a cold. I NEVER have a cold; I am unbelievably blessed with good health. But I have a bad, cough-until-your-ribs-hurt, stuffy-head-and-I-ache-all-over cold. I would love a day to lie on the couch with the remote, while my husband brings me chicken noodle soup and fluffs my pillow.

This is the inaugural post for the Confessions of a Caregiver page where I hope to engage other caregivers or those who see caregiving in their future, to share tips and tricks or blow off steam, but mostly to find encouragement. It is a rewarding challenge to care for those you love, and still love them in spite of the physical and emotional hurdles involved.
