Goodbye, Darkness is a memoir of a Marine's journey through the Pacific, once during World War II and again in the late 1970's as a journalist and historian. It is a wonderfully-written book which shows the madness of war, the ineptitude of mid-level military leadership, and the bond that men in combat forge.

Manchester's "Goodbye Darkness" is a very touching autobiography of his life, but focusing on his time as combat Marine in WWII. I enjoy reading other autobiographies of Marines in WWII: Robert Leckie, and Eugene Sledge, for example.

This emotional and honest novel recounts a young man's experiences during World War II and digs deep into what he and his fellow soldiers lived through during those dark times. The nightmares began for William Manchester 23 years after WW II. In his dreams he lived with the recurring image of a battle-weary youth (himself), "angrily demanding to know what had happened to the three decades since he had laid down his arms."

To me "Goodbye Darkness" although on one level a memoir of the author's service in the US Marine Corps in the Pacific Theatre during World War II is really a journey of discovery of who the author is and the belief system that formed him during the 1930's and 1940's.

Pacific Theater, Goodbye, Darkness: A Memoir of the Pacific War. In this memoir, Manchester uses personal anecdotes from his service on Okinawa in his descriptions of battles on Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Saipan. He stated this in the end notes, as well as clearly denying any attempt at a chronological account.
