Hiking Arizona's Cactus Country, 3rd:... book by Erik Molvar

Hiking in the canyon, I seriously recommend hiking with trekking poles, as this type of descent can be unforgiving on the knees.. From the Bright Angel Campground, you begin your second day and see the greatest change in elevation (4,380 feet up and down), ascending about 9.5 miles out of the canyon to South Rim (and then back again).. That ' s right, today is a 19-mile hiking day.

The most important draw for visitors to the area would be an opportunity to find organ pipe cactus, which in Arizona are contained from the southern reaches of this country. The Bull Pasture/Estes Canyon Loop Trail goes up through some scenery, in the mountains, also offers views across the canyon, desert cliff walls of those hills you ' re climbing, and views away to the hills in Mexico.
