Notes Octaves Scales And Modes

Notes, Octaves, Scales and Modes The interval we call an octave is a simple mathematical relationship ? the higher note is vibrating twice as fast as the lower. So in modern concert pitch, the A above middle C is 440Hz, the A an octave above that is 880Hz, the A below middle C is 220Hz. In modern western music, we divide an octave into 12 equal intervals we call semitones. So, each

NOTES AND SCALES 4.1. Octaves and the Major-Minor Tonal System * Where Octaves Come From. Musical notes, like all sounds, are made of sound waves. The sound waves that make musical notes are very evenly-spaced waves, and the qualities of these regular waves - for example how big they are or how far apart they are - affect the sound of the note.

Why You Want to Learn One Octave Scales. One of the reasons you want to learn one-octave scales is because of their simplicity. By using only one octave it's easier to see the shape and structure of the scale, the notes within the scale, and the intervals. The scale is more user-friendly, easier to play, memorize and apply around the fretboard.

D is the 5th note of the G scale and so on until you have the chart below. This is called the cycle of fifths. Example: Click on E in the Minor Scale column. (E is the 6th note of the G major Scale). The notes of E minor are the same as G Major. Then click on G Major. Only the root note (our starting point) changes. Once you learn all the modes ...

Guitar Scales and Modes

Musical modes are a type of scale with distinct melodic characteristics. The 7 modes, Ionian, Dorian, Phrygian, Lydian, Mixolydian, Aeolian and Locrian, come from the earliest forms of western music. Before we figured out the math for dividing the octave into 12 equal tones, we had to make do with an imperfect system. Modes were the solution.

Each mode is built from a different note, or degree, of the scale: in FIGURE 1, we have the G major scale, also known as the G Ionian mode, starting on the low E string's third fret. On the bottom two strings, the notes fall at the third, fifth and seventh frets, and I like to fret these notes with my first, second and fourth fingers.
